Truck Gardeners Are Undisturbed by Complaints.

Notes and Personal Mention of North Side People.

Emerging unscathed from a storm of criticism, the market held every morning at the intersection of Kansas and Central avenues continues to operate on as large a scale as ever.

Ever since the market was started persons living in the vicinity of the "Y" have objected to its presence. The complaints reached a climax Saturity when Mrs. H. E. Lester "aired" her troubles before Mayor J. E. House and J. A. Ramsey, sanitary sergeant. Mrs. Lester objected to the noise incident to running a market and also to the presence of stray vegetables which remain on the street after the horsiness of the day has been comwhich remain on the street after the cation spent with relatives and friends business of the day has been com-

Chief of Police Harvey Parsons Journeyed to the North side to investigate the complaints. He found that in the immediate vicinity of the market sentiment was not altogether against it. Outside the immediate vicinity of the "Y" practically no opposition to the market was uncarthed.

Team Has Narrow Escape.

A margin of less than a minute in time and a few feet in distance saved the lives of a team belonging to J. C. Coop of rural route No. 16 Sunday merning. The team broke away from in front of the Billard mill at 10:20 o'clock. At the same time a fast freight was entering the Union Pacific yords and at only a slightly decreased speed was headed for the station, no stop having been scheduled for Topeka. Traffic had already been stopped on Kansas avenue and the freight train was passing a point near the American Express office, when the learn and wagon dashed across the ountry, according to Charles Logan, who returned Sunday morning from Oberlin, Decatur county. The western Oberlin, Decatur county. The western part of the state has an abundance of feed, excellent crops of prairie hay and sorghum having been raised. Presperity appears to be general, says Logan. Practically every farmer owns an automobile and land values have increased at least 25 per cent in the
